Dear Ella,

I'm writing to apply for the Site ICT Support Officer role in Port Lincoln. I'm currently based in Adelaide and genuinely open to relocating for this opportunity — what drew me to this role specifically is the variety and autonomy of field-based work, travelling between sites and solving real, hands-on problems, rather than a desk-bound support role.

I hold a Bachelor of Information Technology and a Google IT Support Professional Certificate, with sound knowledge of Microsoft 365, Active Directory, and core networking fundamentals (TCP/IP, DNS, DHCP, VPN, firewalls). Over the past year I've independently designed, built, and deployed three live production systems with no team to fall back on for the hard parts — direct, practical proof that I can work autonomously, manage competing priorities, and get things done without close supervision, exactly as this role requires across multiple sites.

As Project Manager on a university capstone, I led a 5-person team delivering Call-a-Technician (callatechnician.com.au), a live technician dispatch platform now used in production by a real business. I coordinated people across frontend, backend, and infrastructure workstreams simultaneously, and was the direct point of contact for a real external client — clear, regular communication with stakeholders who weren't always technical themselves. I think that maps closely onto liaising with site managers, contractors, and external service providers across the Eyre Peninsula.

I hold a current driver's licence and am genuinely willing to travel regularly. I'm a fast learner, comfortable picking up new tools, environments, and hardware quickly, and I bring a practical, get-it-done attitude to technical work — I'd rather solve the problem in front of me than wait for someone to tell me how.

Thank you for considering my application. I'd welcome the opportunity to discuss this role further at your convenience.

Kind regards,

Priyanshu
