Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm writing to apply for the Call Centre Consultant role with SAPOL. Knowing that every call answered contributes directly to the safety and wellbeing of South Australians is exactly the kind of purpose I want in my work, and I believe my background gives me a genuine foundation to build on through your training program. I've addressed the selection criteria below.

Confident decision maker who can provide clear verbal instructions

As Project Manager leading a 5-person team on a live capstone project, I made independent decisions daily under time pressure and communicated next steps clearly to my team and to a real external client, so everyone knew exactly what to do and when.

Skilled at identifying and extracting key information

That same project required me to gather requirements directly from a client and translate sometimes vague or incomplete information into a clear, actionable plan — a skill I also built designing TicketDesk, a system specifically for triaging issues by priority and category.

Effective communicator with people from diverse backgrounds

Two years of direct, recurring client-facing work at VIP Cleaning Services has me communicating daily with people from a wide range of backgrounds, consistently scoring 95% in client quality surveys by adjusting how I communicate to suit each person.

Team player with strong organisational abilities

Leading a development team while juggling frontend, backend, and infrastructure workstreams simultaneously required strong organisation and genuine collaboration — I couldn't have delivered a live product without both.

Solutions-focused, community-minded, and guided by integrity and respect

I built three independent software projects driven by wanting to solve a real problem, not because I was told to, and I bring the same respect and integrity to every client relationship I manage.

Tech-savvy, with experience using multiple screens and software systems

I hold a Bachelor of Information Technology and have independently designed, built, and deployed three live software products, including a system that monitors multiple live data streams simultaneously (SkyOps). Multiple screens and unfamiliar software systems are genuinely comfortable territory for me.

Resilient and composed in high-pressure environments

I've maintained 99.5% accuracy across 200–300 orders a day in a fast-paced, high-volume warehouse role, and led project delivery under real deadline pressure — staying composed and focused is something I've already had to practise, not just claim.

Thank you for considering my application. I understand this role requires flexibility across a 24/7 roster, and I'm fully available for that. I'd welcome the opportunity to discuss how I can contribute to your team.

Kind regards,
