Dear Hiring Manager,

I'm writing to apply for the Retail Service Consultant role at Optus Elizabeth. What drew me to this listing is the way it's framed around genuine curiosity and care, not just sales targets — that's the kind of customer service I actually enjoy giving, and it's how I've approached every client-facing role I've had.

For the past two years I've worked directly with clients at VIP Cleaning Services, where I consistently scored 95% in client quality surveys by listening carefully to feedback and adjusting how I worked to meet their expectations — building real trust over a recurring working relationship rather than a one-off interaction. I also introduced standardised checklists that lifted site quality scores by 25%, which came from noticing a gap and taking the initiative to fix it without being asked.

What I think sets me apart for this specific role is my technology background. I hold a Bachelor of Information Technology and have spent the past year independently building and supporting live software products — including a customer booking platform and a help-desk system. That means I'm genuinely comfortable with devices, connectivity, and digital services, and just as importantly, I've had real practice explaining technical things in plain, simple language to people who aren't technical. I'd bring that same "Tech Explorer" approach to helping Optus customers understand their options without making them feel talked down to.

I stay calm under pressure — I've worked in fast-paced, high-accuracy environments (99.5% order accuracy across 200–300 orders a day in a previous warehouse role) where staying composed and focused mattered every single shift. I'm a strong team player, reliable, and genuinely excited about the chance to build a long-term career with a company like Optus.

Thank you for considering my application — I'd love the opportunity to bring my customer-service experience and tech curiosity to your Elizabeth team.

Kind regards,

Priyanshu
