SUMMARY

Recent IT graduate with a Bachelor of Information Technology from Federation University Australia, drawn to Deloitte's Technology Graduate Program because the work is described as hands-on and problem-led — that's exactly how I already operate. Over the past year I've independently designed, built, and deployed three live production systems end-to-end, covering software engineering, DevOps, cloud infrastructure, and monitoring — not theoretical exercises, but real systems used by real people. As Project Manager on a university capstone, I led a 5-person team delivering a live platform for a real business client, directly experiencing how technology decisions connect to business outcomes and service delivery. I'm a fast, curious, self-directed learner who genuinely enjoys understanding how systems fit together, solving complex problems, and building things that actually get used in the real world.
